PREFACE

This practical guide has been prepared as a visual resource to enable the Histology and Embryology courses more effective for students from faculties of medicine, dentistry and health sciences. By a collaborative work of all faculty members, research assistants and laboratory personnel of the Department of Histology and Embryology at Ankara University Faculty of Medicine, microscopic slides were carefully chosen from the archive of Ankara University Faculty of Medicine Histology and Embryology Department.

Each section has been prepared by the lecturer responsible for the specified course practice. The left pages present the the microscopic images, and the blank pages on the right were reserved for the schematic drawings of the student's observations. Care was taken to use a common language in writing.

With the guidance of this book, which we think will be useful in the applications of histology and embryology courses, we wish you success and expect your suggestions and feedback.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Turkish version of this manual was first published in 2014 (First Edition) and then in 2018 (Second edition). More than 8,000 copies were almost sold out completely. As Ankara University School of Medicine started the medical teaching in English curriculum in 2018, there has been a growing demand for the English version of this guide. So, after a complete revisit of the previous editions, we prepared this first English Edition.

We would like to thank the faculty members and their assistants whose names are mentioned below in the first edition and some of them retired after completing their duties in our department.

Prof. Dr. Canan Akbay (retired)

Prof. Dr. M. Cengiz Güven (retired)
